

July 2018

Empty wallet? Emory staff can get DVDs, e-books, and more at the Music & Media Library

A sample of the DVDs, CDs, and OverDrive e-books and audiobooks available to Emory and Oxford staff (and faculty and students), courtesy of Emory's Music & Media Library.

The perfect summer reading, listening, and movie-watching options are available to Emory staff—at no cost—at the Music & Media Library, on the fourth floor above the lobby in the Woodruff Library.

A vast collection of movies and TV shows on DVD and music on CD can be checked out, and the latest e-books and audiobooks can be downloaded from Emory's Overdrive collection. You'll even find movies that aren't on Netflix—or that have already come and gone. (All this goodness is available to faculty and students, too.) And did we mention that it costs nothing?

Go here for more details and a sample of titles

Video of Crespino talk on new Atticus Finch biography now online

Credit: Emory Photo/Video.

The video recording of Emory history professor and author Joseph Crespino and his Creativity Conversation with former Rose Library director Rosemary Magee on his new book, "Atticus Finch: The Biography," is now posted on YouTube.

The conversation took place May 3 in the Woodruff Library; if you were unable to attend, or would simply like to see it again or share it with a friend, click or copy the link below.

Go here to watch the conversation on YouTube

Rose Library magazine online edition is posted

The latest issue of the Rose Library magazine, Reveal, is available online, with articles on the letters of Barack Obama, Allen Ginsberg, and Harper Lee; new acquisitions of historical science, technology, and astronomy texts; a day in the life of an archivist, and more. This magazine issue recently won a PR award from the American Libraries Association. Happy reading!

Read the Rose Library magazine online

Emory Libraries grants spark innovation

South Asian Studies librarian Ellen Ambrosone (left) and ECDS training specialist Anandi Silva Knuppel used their innovation grant to plan and hold a digital humanities symposium. Credit: Emory Libraries.

Last year, Emory Libraries offered grants and mini-grants to its staff to encourage innovation. This year, we've had the pleasure of hearing about the winning projects and programs that these grants funded. Read more about some of the projects at the links below.

Digital Humanities Symposium

Wikipedian-in-Residence

Archives Exchange with Spelman College

From readings to receptions, don't miss a single event. Get updates sent to your phone or email, or add a reminder directly to your calendar. See what's coming up and choose an option that suits you.

To subscribe to this newsletter, email your name and address here.

Read about our latest news, events, exhibitions, and headlines here.

View previous issues of Keywords here.

Help us inspire creative expression, scholarship, and new knowledge. Contribute to Emory Libraries.